BURNING OF THE NORTHERN INDIANA.

Additional Particulars of the Disaster.

List of Persons Known to be Lost.

SUNDAY, Friday, July 13.

We have the following additional particulars of the burning of the Northern Indiana. The fire originated in the wood-work around one of the chimneys and spread very rapidly. The vessel burned to the water's edge in fifty minutes.

Mr. WARNOCK, the first mate, commanding, in the absence of Capt. PERRY, exerted himself to the utmost to save the passengers, and was the last one to leave the burning vessel. He stood at his post, throwing down life-preservers, stools, &c., to the passengers, who, mad with excitement, were leaping overboard in crowds. The weather was pleasant and a light sea prevailed, and Mr. WARNOCK says, could he have controlled the recklessness of the passengers in jumping overboard, not one of them would have been lost. During the excitement some of the firemen and deck hands launched a small boat, into which several of them jumped, but it was driven under the wheels of the steamer and they were lost.

The steamer was towed in shore by the propeller Hyperion, and now has in Pigeon Bay, above Point au Pelee, in ten feet of water. Her hull is said to be uninjured. With favorable weather she can be towed into port.

With regard to the number lost, the reports are conflicting, and a correct estimate cannot be made as the ship's stores were destroyed. Mr. MASON, the Clerk of the vessel, arrived at Cleveland this morning. He says that not less than fifty have been lost.

The propeller Republic, supposed to have saved a number of the passengers, arrived at Detroit this morning with several of the crew, but with only two of the passengers.

We have no names of the persons either known or supposed to be lost.

ANOTHER DISPATCH.

DETROIT, Saturday, July 14.

The number of passengers saved from the Northern Indiana, brought up by the Mississippi, is one hundred and forty-two.

The following persons are known to be lost:

Sewell Turner and Daniel Gray, of Rome, Maine.
Michael Burke and Thos. Farie, of Buffalo.
Mrs. Edna Blanchard, of Augusta, Me.
Henry Niles and child, of Tully, N. Y.
Augustine Fiatvaile, of Buffalo.
Geo. Dawson, of Brockport, N. Y.
Miss Mary Lidsyard, of England.
Mrs. Mary Abbreyden, her father, mother, husband, and two children, of England.
C. Smith, of Buffalo.
Eugene Gary and child, of Greenbush, Wis.
Jos. Jennings, of Waverley, Ill.
Hezekiah Thomas, of Buffalo.
Nicholas Commerford, of Rochester.
A lady and a child, of Louisville.
Three coal-heavers, a deck hand, and a child.

It is feared that more than these have been lost.

The Captain of the Republic thinks none were saved except those on board his own vessel and the Mississippi.

Our citizens held a meeting last night and raised $600 for the sufferers, and several more hundred was raised for them to-day. Every attention is paid to them. Free railroad and steamboat passes are furnished them, and the hotels and the telegraph are also free to them.

STILL ANOTHER DISASTER.

Burning of the Propeller Tioga on Lake Ontario—Twelve Persons Lost.

KINGSTON, C. W., Friday, July 13.

The Propeller Tioga was burned last night off Nine Mile Point, and is a total wreck. About twenty persons are lost, among them Capt. CLARKSON and Mr. HENDERSON. The Purser and twelve of the crew are saved.

Great Fire at Newark, N. J.

SIXTEEN BUILDINGS BURNED—THREE SUN-STRUCK.

From the Newark Daily Advertiser, July 13.

The most destructive fire which has occurred in this city for a long time, broke out about noon to-day in South Bridge-st., and consumed fifteen buildings—mostly small tenant houses. One other was seriously injured by the falling of the roof, and the heat of the fire and sun was so great that two more were prostrated from their labors. The loss is estimated at from $7000 to $8,000—mostly insured.

The fire broke out in a stable at No. 52 South Bridge-st., owned by JOHN A. MILLER, but occupied by Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, a livery-stable keeper. The stable and Chamberlain's Court were in the midst of many wooden buildings. From the stable, the flames communicated with Chamberlain's Court, comprising eleven tenements. Two two story frame buildings, which were directly in the rear of these, fronting on Front-st., and Nos. 50 and 52 South Bridge-st., took fire, and were destroyed. Two two story frame buildings on the opposite side of Front-st., were also consumed.

The buildings in Chamberlain's Court were occupied mostly by Irish and German families, who escaped with their lives and property. Those in South Bridge-street were occupied by JAMES FIELD and LAWRENCE McGRAW, and owned by Mr. H. STEARNS. Nos. 50 and 52 Front-st. were occupied by Messrs. EDGERTON, SMITH & Co., as stables, and owned by the heirs of CHARLES SEDGWICK. Loss about $1000—fully insured.

The three story frame building, No. 48 South Bridge-st., including Mrs. FIELD'S grocery, was owned by Jonas A. MILLER, and occupied by Mr. ALONZO SPENCER as a dwelling. The adjoining building No. 52 South Bridge-street was also damaged in the roof.

The total loss is about $7,000, of which a large portion was insured. Thirteen of the buildings were owned by JOHN H. STEARNS, Esq., who is insured for $5,500, as follows: [illegible] $1,500; Mutual, $2,000.

The firemen were seen on the spot, and were standing the excessive heat of the fire very manfully for the safety of the property. Two of the firemen, however, were seriously injured by the falling of the building and the heat of the fire. Another fireman was prostrated from the heat in the back by the falling of a chimney from a house in Broad-street, and injured so seriously that he was carried home. A member of No. 6, named CRAIG, and one of Head No. 3, named CRAIG W. CLARK, were sun-struck, and conveyed to neighboring houses. A woman was also sun-struck in the vicinity.

The fire raged until almost sunset. Forty-one shade trees, and maples in almost [illegible] were burned. The former, nevertheless, were saved, although they were somewhat injured in the roots. Several other buildings were in imminent danger, which was prevented by the [illegible] of the firemen.

In relation to the origin of the fire we [illegible]

Great Fire in Brooklyn.

A fire occurred in Brooklyn, on Thursday morning, at the building No. 219 Broadway, corner of Whitehall-street, in which the murder was committed. It is three stories in height. The first floor is occupied as a saddlery and harness shop, the second floor by Mr. Samuel Jayne as a tailoring establishment, and the third floor by Mr. Cavallo as a residence.

Bartholomew Burke, the murdered man, was in the employ of Mr. Joyce, as porter, and slept in the store every night as watchman. His bed, a cot, was stretched in the rear of the store behind the cutting-board.

On Thursday evening the store was closed, the premises, stationed, &c., went away, and Burke was left behind as usual. He was perfectly sober, and there was no appearance of any kind of the horrible affair that was to occur before morning.

The next (yesterday) morning, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Joyce's foreman, was the first person to arrive at the store. Finding the door locked, he knocked several times, and receiving no answer, he procured the services of a locksmith and had the door broken open. When he entered he beheld a shocking sight. Blood was thickly sprinkled on the floor, cutting boards and on the cot in which Burke slept. Everything in the room seemed displaced, and betokened a dreadful and bloody struggle. A sword-sheath lay on the bed, half hid among the clothes, and about twenty feet distant lay a naked sword,—while a hat or pocket-book, a hammer and other heavy instruments were lastly red around, bespeared with blood.

On passing the cot through a door leading into the dressing room, the body of Burke, was found completely naked, and shockingly mutilated. It lay on the right side; the throat was cut and the neck and shoulders were gashed in various places; the forehead was indented, as though from a blow with a hammer; in fact the whole body was covered with blood and wounds.

A trunk and bag belonging to Burke had been broken open and rifled of their contents, and a bundle, containing shirts and other under-garments was also opened and several articles taken away.

The family of Mr. Cavallo, although occupying the floor directly above the one where the murder was committed, knew nothing of the affair till the morning.

The police were called and placed in charge of the premises, and everything bearing on the event was eagerly sought for. It was ascertained, that at 10½ o'clock on Thursday night Burke, accompanied by a young man, proceeded to the saloon in the basement of the building a quart of lager beer, being the third quart he had bought at the above place during the evening.

Later in the night he was seen by a woman from the opposite side of the street, sitting at a window of Mr. Joyce's store, by the side of a young man. Both were drinking beer.

Burke, though he would now and then go on a spree, was in the main a steady and temperate man. He had been, for ten years in the employ of Mr. Joyce, by whom he was well liked. Furthermore he was economical, and had about $900 in the Seamen's and Chamber-street Savings Banks. His book on the former Bank was in that institution to be examined and arranged. The one on the Seamen's Bank was in his trunk, in Mr. Joyce's store, and was taken away by the murderer. He was also in the habit of keeping in the same trunk more or less money to meet any sudden calls. The trunk, as already stated, was emptied of everything valuable. These things would seem to indicate that the deed was done in part for the sake of plunder.

Burke was an unmarried man. Several of his relatives, we understand, reside in this city. He was a native of Ireland, and about thirty-five years of age.

The Sixth Ward Police, within whose district the murder took place, were yesterday on the alert in pursuit of the murderer, and the Chief has detailed for the same purpose some of his most experienced detectives.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

Coroner Connery, on being notified of the murder, summoned a jury of inquest which commenced its labors yesterday afternoon.

TESTIMONY.

Taken presented no facts materially different from those given above, although fuller in detail.

DEPOSITION OF MR. JOYCE.

Samuel Joyce, being sworn, deposed: Am proprietor of the tailoring establishment at No. 219 Broadway; deceased was my porter, and had been in my employ for ten years; he was a temperate man; first would occasionally go on a spree; he always came back to the back room and would have locked himself in; I saw him at half past eight o'clock in the evening; he was perfectly sober; at nine o'clock this morning I was informed he was dead; I went to the store and found the body in the back room covered with blood; his throat was cut, and there were several gashes in his shoulders; Mr. Wood and Mr. Isaac Bedell, with a preceding them, one of which, covered with blood, lay near him; the stench of a sword was in the cot, and the sword lay twenty feet from it; there were spots of blood on the bed, ceiling, floors and door; his right leg on the board covered with blood; the body lay on the right side and presented a horrid appearance; I never knew Burke to have one enemy; I know that he had money in two Savings Banks; his trunk was unlocked; do not know who took his money or trinkets; I sent an order to the Savings Banks not to deliver to any one his money, and also informed them of his death.

DEPOSITION OF MR. WARNOCK.

William Warnock, deposed—I live at No. 62 Bleecker-street; am employed by Mr. Joyce as his foreman tailor; knew deceased to have been employed by Mr. Joyce for seven years; he was a sober man and was employed as porter; at half-past seven o'clock last evening saw deceased as I left the store; then he was fixing up the store to go of an errand; the errand he performed; it was to deliver a pair of pantaloons to Dr. Bradshaw; he slept in the store every night as a watch; he always locked the door himself; was there on evening; the store this morning when I came to the door I knocked but received no answer; I then went for a locksmith who came and unlocked the door; the inside door which is usually locked was open; when I entered, the first thing I discovered was blood upon the door and on the cutting board; I also looked to the cot where he slept and saw the sheath of a sword lying on the bed, partially covered by a quilt; there was blood on the bed; I then passed the edge of the cot through the cut hand door leading into the dressing-room and beheld a frightful spectacle; deceased was lying on his right side; his throat [illegible] with a horrible gash; he had his back and this door was all covered with blood; I then left the store in care of Dr. Hudson and Mr. Reed; our lunch closet; I brought a policeman and gave him the place in charge; I heard the [illegible] who stands at the corner say that the cry a man stalking at the store window at [illegible] about eleven o'clock last night; I don't know who opened his box nor who took his trinkets; found the keys missing that opened the store door; there were three keys on the one ring; two of them are gone; heard Mr. Cavallo's girl say that she heard a noise resembling at the store door about ten o'clock last night; she said it was a drab one; I know no more about the occurrence.

TESTIMONY OF A WOMAN WHO SAW A MAN KNOCKING AT THE WORK DOOR.

Margaret Leahy being sworn, said: I live with Mr. Cavallo, on the third floor of the house No. 219 Broadway; have lived in the house about twelve months; know deceased; saw him on the morning of the murder; saw a man knocking at the door of the store; [illegible] I saw the corpse of deceased [illegible] I saw him last evening, I believe about
